YORKSHIRE DISAPPOINT ONCE AGAIN

Nichol's Third Century
In Succession.

INGLE SCORES 112 OUT
OF 138

London, To-day.

Yorkshire have taken things very easily since they won the County Cricket Championship, and as a result they have been beaten once and have conceded major points in three of their four games. Yesterday they lost on the first innings to Worcester.

The match was featured by Nichol's third century in successive matches. In hitting up 154 against the champions he followed up scores of 165, not out, against Glamorgan and 116 against Hampshire in his two previous matches.

Yorkshire, who were led by 197 on the first innings, were indebted to Mitchell (150) and Maurice Leyland (117), both of whom were undefeated, for their splendid second innings recovery.

Heavy scoring featured the Hampshire-Exeter match at Bournemouth where four centuries and 1,229 runs for 25 wickets were scored during the three days. Exeter secured major points.

R. A. Ingle, deputy skipper of Somerset, played a dashing innings against Notts who led by only 24 on the first innings. He scored 112 in the unbroken first wicket partnership which realized 138 runs.

F. R. Brown, who toured Australia with Jardine's team, took half the Leicester second innings wickets for 50 runs to give Surrey a 4 wickets win. It was the metropolitan county's sixth win in 26 games.

Results as cable by Reuter: County Championship.

Surrey beat Leicester by 4 wickets at the Oval.

Leicester 146 and 230 (F. R. Brown 5 for 50).

Surrey 246 (Marlow 5 for 62) and 181 for 6.

Essex took first innings points from Hampshire at Bournemouth.

Hants 423 (Moore 159).

242 for 7 (Crease 101 not out).

Essex 564 for 8 dec. (Eastman 157 not out, O'Connor 130).

Notts took first innings points from Somerset at Taunton.

Notts 351 and 209 for 4 dec.

Somerset 327 and 138 for 0 (R. A. Ingle 112 not out).

Worcester took first innings points from Yorkshire at Worcester.

Yorkshire 223 and 421 for 3 (Mitchell 150 not out, Leyland 117 not out).

Worcester 420 (Nichol 154, Martin 144).

Derby took first innings points from Lancashire at Blackpool.

Derby 215 (Sibbles 5 for 62) and 163 for 7 dec.

MISS WILSON BEATEN IN U.S. LADIES' GOLF

Surprising Defeat By The Holder.

ATTRIBUTES FAILURE TO OVER-PRACTICE

Highland Park, Illinois, To-day.

A crowd of 2,000 saw Virginia Van Wie, the holder, eliminate the last British competitor in the American Women's Golf Championship yesterday when she beat Enid Wilson, the British champion, by the surprisingly big margin of 6 and 5 over 18 holes in the Semi Final Round on the Exmoor course.

In the other semi-final Helen Hicks beat Maureen Orcutt in an all-American match by 6 and 4.

Enid Wilson, who was making her fourth and last attempt on the American title, attributed her defeat to over-practice.

She said, "I practised iron shots for three hours on Thursday evening and wore myself out. I could not hit any iron shots at all to-day."

The weather was extremely hot without a breath of wind when the players went out to face their ordeal in the face of a gallery of 2,000 spectators.

The results were:

Virginia Van Wie (U.S.A. and holder) beat Enid Wilson (Britain) 6 and 5.

Helen Hicks (U.S.A.) beat Maureen Orcutt (U.S.A.) 6 and 4.

ULSTER T. T. STARTS TO-DAY.

10,000 Enthusiasts
Invade Belfast.

London, To-day.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the Prime Minister, who is the guest of Lord Londonderry at Mount Stewart, Northern Ireland, will visit Ulster to-day to start the Tourist Trophy Race before leaving Ireland in the evening.

Judging from speeds at trial runs at the Ards Circuit an extremely close and exciting contest is expected.

A crowd of 10,000 racing enthusiasts from all over the British Isles, and from the Continent have been attracted to Belfast by it.

Proposed Fusion Of Opposition.

COSGRAVE AS PARTY
CHAIRMAN IN DAIL

Dublin, To-day.

A move toward consolidating the Opposition against Mr. Eamon De Valera, President of the Irish Free State, into a new Party led by General O'Duffy, Director-General of the Irish National Guard, was made yesterday. The Executive of the Centre Party decided to recommend the Party to agree to merge with Mr. W. T. Cosgrave's Nationalist Party.

The new Party into which the National Guard "Blue Shirts" would also merge would be led by General O'Duffy, with Mr. Cosgrave as Party Chairman in the Irish Free State Dail.

Should such a Party eventuate, its main plank will be denunciation of the trade war with England.

If the union is achieved, it is thought that its appearance in the field might cause the Government to change its mind about an election and make an early appeal to the country. — Reuter.

PROTECTION FOR NEWSPAPERMEN.

Executive Yuan's Orders
To Remedy Abuses.

Nanking, To-day.

The Executive Yuan has instructed the Ministries of War and the Interior to circulate all grades of Army organizations and local Governments enjoining them to extend full protection to newspapermen and newspaper enterprises.

The Yuan's instructions refer to complaints of arbitrary treatment of journalists by local officials, and emphasize the articles of the provisional Constitution stipulating freedom of speech and the safety of persons. — Reuter's Pacific Service.

FRANCE TO REVIVE QUOTA SYSTEM

Export Concessions May

Paris, To-day.
The quota system in France is to be revived from October 1. New quotas will be negotiated in exchange for concessions to French exports. Present quotas will stand, up to 25 per cent. — Reuter.

BOB PEARCE WINS WORLD'S SCULLING TITLE

Phelps Beaten Over
Three Mile Course.

HOLDER LOSES BY 70 SECS.

Toronto, To-day.

Competing in his first professional sculling match yesterday Bobby Pearce, the Australian champion, won the world's title when he beat Ted Phelps, the holder, by 200 yards over a three-mile course.

The times were:
Pearce 19 min. 24 secs.
Phelps 20 min. 36 secs.

Pearce led by three lengths at the end of the first mile, and increased it to twenty lengths at the end of the second.

Pearce, the greatest sculler the world has known, won the Olympic titles in 1923 and 1932 and was successful in the Diamond Sculls at Henley two years ago.

The only time he was fully extended was when H. T. Brocklebank, the Cambridge stroke, displayed amazing form in the heats for the Diamond Sculls at Henley in 1931.

Tall and powerfully built, Pearce turned professional after the Olympic Games at Los Angeles last July.

Phelps, a member of the Thames Rowing Club, was undisputed world's professional champion for the past four years, in spite of the persistent challenges of Goodsell.

VISCOUNT GREY CRITICALLY ILL.

"Just Holding His Own."

London, To-day.
A bulletin issued yesterday stated, "There is no change in Lord Grey's condition."

He is now apparently just holding his own, but in the absence of definite improvement, grave anxiety continues. — British Wireless Service.

RECORD PRICE OF GOLD

Hoarding Causes Rise.

FOREIGN DISTRUST OF NON-GOLD CURRENCIES

London, To-day.

Gold quotations reached a new record on the London Stock Exchange yesterday, when the price soared to 130s. 8½d. per ounce, the highest price in history. The previous all-time record of 130s. 8d. in November, 1932.

The rise is attributed to hoarding and foreign distrust of non-gold currencies. — United Press, per S. C. Gold Bar Co.

The ceremony took place at Chalk Farm, London on August 3. (S. & G.)

EXPANDING CREDIT IN U.S. INDUSTRY

Interest Reduced On Loans.

EXTENSIVE CREDIT TO HELP BUSINESS

Washington, To-day.

It is understood that the United States Administration have arranged to provide the nation's banks with extensive credit, permitting them to extend extensive credit business without impairing liquidity. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation will reduce the interest on the U. S. $300,000,000 already loaned to banks, from 4½ to 4 per cent.

The Federal Reserve will also extend rediscount, although rediscount paper will not be eligible for Federal Reserve Banks' reserves but will be taken over by the Reconstruction Corporation as a basis of direct loans to banks.

The Federal reserve, this week, purchased U. S. $35,000,000 in Government bonds, thus further expanding credit all of which is intended to assist business recovery. — United Press, per S. C. Gold Bar Co.

ANTI-MALARIAL INSPECTORS

Two Vacancies For Shing Mun Work.

Vacancies for two Chinese Inspectors for the supervision of anti-malarial operations at Shing Mun, are announced in the Government Gazette.

LOCAL DOLLAR UNCHANGED.

Silver Prices Advance.

Though silver prices advanced slightly yesterday, the dollar to-day is unchanged, at 1/4½.

Silver, both spot and forward, improved by 1/16, closing at 18 1/16 and 18 1/4 respectively. The cross rate, 50th London on New York and New York on London, is 2-24 1/2.

INACTIVITY CONTINUES ON WALL STREET

Stocks Rise In Dull
Day's Trading.

SILVER SWITCHINGS

New York, To-day.

Inactivity still reigns on Wall Street, and it is thought that little movement will be seen until after the holiday. Industrials recovered .125 to 103.66 yesterday, while rails advanced .10 to 52.56. Utilities and bonds were unchanged at 30.86 and 87.17. Business done was 1,220,000 shares.

Silver was very quiet, but investment straddles continued. In their daily report, Messrs. E. A. Pierce and Company, through their local correspondents, Messrs. Asia Lands, Ltd., state:—

"The top of the trading range established during the past two weeks was near the year's high for industrials. The market appears to be in a position whereby it could again push through on the up-side on any stimulating news."

"It would not be surprising if an upward movement got under way next week."

"Wheat: Trading has been narrow. September liquidation caused easier markets."

"Cotton: Hedge operations were more noticeable but offerings were well absorbed by the Trade. Speculation was light. Shower conditions prevail over the major part of the belt."

There is a holiday in all markets to-day and on Monday. — Reuter.

POLITICAL SCANDAL

SENSATIONAL
DISCLOSURES

Leadership Intrigues Alleged.

SNOWDEN, MACDONALD AND HENDERSON

London, To-day.

A political stir in which Viscount Snowden, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the Prime Minister and Mr. Arthur Henderson, Leader of the Labour Party, and also President of the Disarmament Conference, are the central figures, has been caused by Commander Kenworthy's allegations of intrigues over the leadership of the Labour Party in 1931.

Lord Snowden, yesterday, hotly declared that the story is an "unmitigated lie."

According to Comdr. Kenworthy, who is telling the story in a forthcoming autobiography, following the idea that Mr. MacDonald should go to India as Viceroy, the Party approached Mr. Henderson who was willing to be nominated for leadership if Lord Snowden was prepared to support him.

Comdr. Kenworthy and others approached Lord Snowden, who was at first "charmingly believing" that the indication was to himself. Afterwards, Comdr. Kenworthy believed, when the truth came out, Lord Snowden began to hate the Party with which he had spent many years.

Lord Snowden's denial further accuses Comdr. Kenworthy of asking him to intrigue against Mr. MacDonald, which he flatly refused to do. — Reuter.

INDIA BONDS REDEMPTION.

Six Per Cent. Issue Of
May 1931.

PAYMENT AT PAR

London, To-day.

The India Office announces that the Secretary of State for India in Council, in accordance with conditions specified in the prospectus of May 19, 1931, under which the Government of India 6 per cent. Bonds 1933-34 were issued, namely that the Bonds might be redeemed at par on or at any time after December 15, 1933, on three calendar months' notice being given in the London Gazette, gives notice that it is his intention to redeem the amount of Bonds outstanding at par on December 15, 1933.

Repayment will be made at the Bank of England, from which information as to the procedure that will be followed may be ascertained, as from December 15, 1933, interest on these Bonds will cease to be payable. — British Wireless Service.

WEATHER FORECAST

EYES BENEFIT BY AMPLE SLEEP

Do Not Read In Bright Sunlight.

The best eyes in the world feel the strain of continued sun glare. If your eyes are the least bit weak, humour them. If you frown constantly, the chances are that you need glasses. If you need them, by all means get them. Perhaps you'll only have to wear them to read and for close work.

Good, sound sleep, eight hours nightly, is one of the best ways to humour tired eyes. For your eyes, you know, give first warnings when you are fatigued, overstrained or in any way tired.

Plain diet, with plenty of fruit and vegetables and all the water you can drink between meals helps strained eyes, too. For your eyes are particularly sensitive when you have any touch of stomach or digestive trouble.

Just plain eye strain should be avoided. Don't read in bright sunlight. You know yourself how hard it is on your eyes. Don't stay hours in the sun without covering your eyes. And don't sit either too far down or too far back when you go to the movies. Both locations are a strain to eyes that have any defect whatever.

Corkscrew Curl Cape Is Novel Accessory.

Paris. Corkscrew curl capes are a novel accessory this season. They are made of black waxed linen, fashioned along the regulation lines of elbow length capes with the ends cut and rolled so that they curl upward like shavings. They are worn with black and white, or all black frocks

PERMANENT WAVE NOT HARMFUL.

Well-Known Methods Are Best.

Does a permanent wave hurt the hair? No. Not if the wave is given by a good method, and by an operator who has gathered skill and judgment from experience. The alkaline solution used in winding the hair should be a harmless one, that is why you should choose a hairdresser that follows one of the well-known methods.

The degree of heat to the used and the length of time the heat is applied to the hair vary with difficult types of hair. An operator learns to judge these things from handling hair and giving many waves.

Too much heat may dry hair that is very fine or characteristically dry. Such hair should be put in good condition, by a series of scalp massages or oil shampoos, both before and after a permanent wave.

EVENING WRAPS THAT ARE NEW

Paris Now Favours All White.

SIMPLE SLENDER SKIRTS

White is always a favourite note for summer evening gowns, and it achieves a background for varied evening wrap lines during the season. Redfern designs an all-white evening ensemble which makes one realise how the slimmer skirts enhance the value of bolero jackets in the same white fabric.

This short jacket, which can be wrapped gracefully round the figure, has wide short sleeves to broaden the top outline. These, with long scarf ends bordered by black monkey fringe, effect a most becoming evening silhouette.

Slender skirts make for elegant simplicity in white satin cloy trimmed simply with a gold belt, a split opening at one side of the skirt lending ease in movement. The slightest "en forme" cut is another graceful line for a white cire satin tailored gown with a high front and low back décolleté.

This type of evening bolero has a "grande soiree" quality, but there are others with a less important air for less important occasions. In wide open patterned laces of black or white re-embroidered with diamante. Bolero jackets will no doubt serve as a happy inspiration to disguise full open décolletés for simple dinner parties at home. This also applies to a new lace capelet for lace gowns.

A most ingenious model is made from a circle of lace with a large open round cut in the centre. When the head is passed through this round, the top of the circle hangs like a short capelet and the lower part is drawn round the hips in the manner of a jacket.

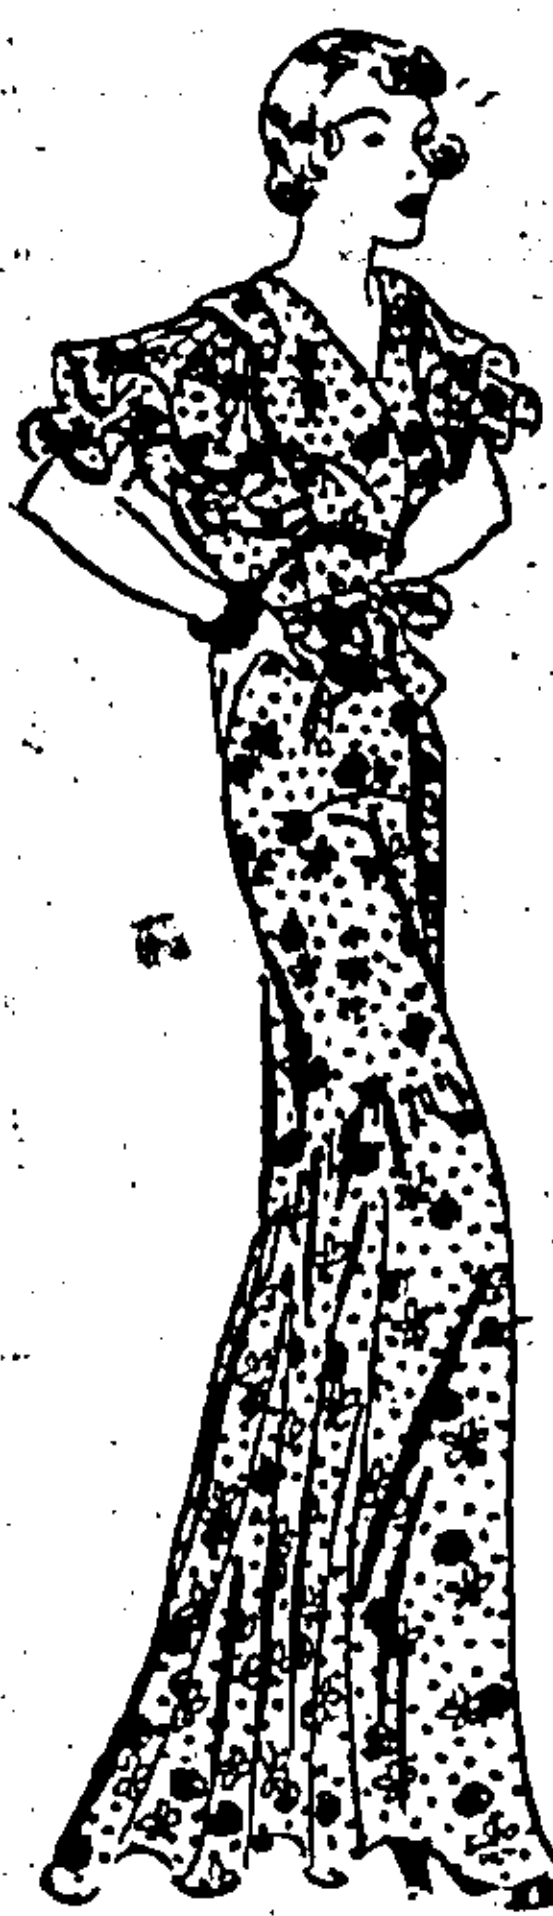

"Smoking" Revival.

Then there is the "smoking" revival which seems to be pleasing quite a number of smart women in anticipation for summer evening wear. A model in white pean d'ange worn with a black full-length dinner skirt shows a sleeveless yellow blouse top, and there is a later edition in dark red cire satin to wear over a black silk cloy gown, the red satin being placed in shoulder straps and round the low black décolleté.

Ostrich is not so prolific in Paris this year—except in one instance, when the curled variety in white borders a black chiffon capelet that goes with a bunch of white flowers at the front waistline and the kind sponsored by Lelong. This has a bristling quality through some of the long fronds being plucked to effect an osprey surface.

Whenever this designer uses this special ostrich fringe it follows again that it either borders the hems of capelets or necklines. Never both at the same time. It is the summer equivalent of fox fur which, in its turn, looks perfect in black on a pink velvet cape with a black chiffon evening gown.

The colour of plain fruit-cakes may be improved by the use of cocoa. One dessertspoon to 1lb. of flour is sufficient for this purpose without giving a flavour of chocolate.

ACCESSORIES FOR HOLIDAYS.

An Increased Variety

Little sac short coats with a holiday air are made in blue and scarlet frieze or striped flannel, but they are cut in a frivolous flyaway manner, not in the least like a blazer.

The tunic blouse is cut in many ways, and can be effective for both slim and stouter figures. Round and ending at the knees, they suit the girl, but they can also be cut more slantways for older women.

Plain stitched linen hats, with a little, braid-trimming, are smart for holidays in the country. Shantung-straw is a little lighter in weight.

The gloves, scarves, caps, and increased varieties, in accessories are specially helpful in holiday times, for cotton and wool gloves and queer belts are not expensive, and these things look their best in gay country or seaside atmosphere, and cheer up our more sombre town suits, without adding greatly to expenditure.

AN EMERGENCY TIP FOR SUEDE GLOVES

Occasionally when a pair of white suede gloves are required in an emergency it is found that they are badly soiled. They may, however, be treated speedily and effectively so that it is possible to wear them again until there is an opportunity for them to be spared and sent to the cleaners. Heat some flour in a basin in the oven, dip a pad of cotton wool in the hot flour, and rub it well into the gloves. This operation is performed more successfully when the gloves are on the hands.

To save gas when cooking dried beans, peas, fruit, etc., bring to the boil, turn out the gas and allow them to get fairly cool; boil up again and repeat the process as long as necessary. Very few "boil-ups" will be required and the food will be very tender.

Brunettes Return To Favour

Blondes Are Becoming Unfashionable.

SHINGLES BRING BALDNESS

It may come as a shock to some to learn that blondes are becoming unfashionable, and dark hair, after several rumours of its coming popularity, has definitely returned to favour. The sleek blonde head, of rather a dark shade, will still be "good," but the brunette with smooth brown hair with bronze lights in it will be in the height of fashion.

Some beauty specialists are now selling special Egyptian henna shampoos, to be used once a fortnight for those who wish to obtain bronze lights in their hair, and one can imagine a neatly waved bronze being very welcome to the eye after an orgy of platinum blondes.

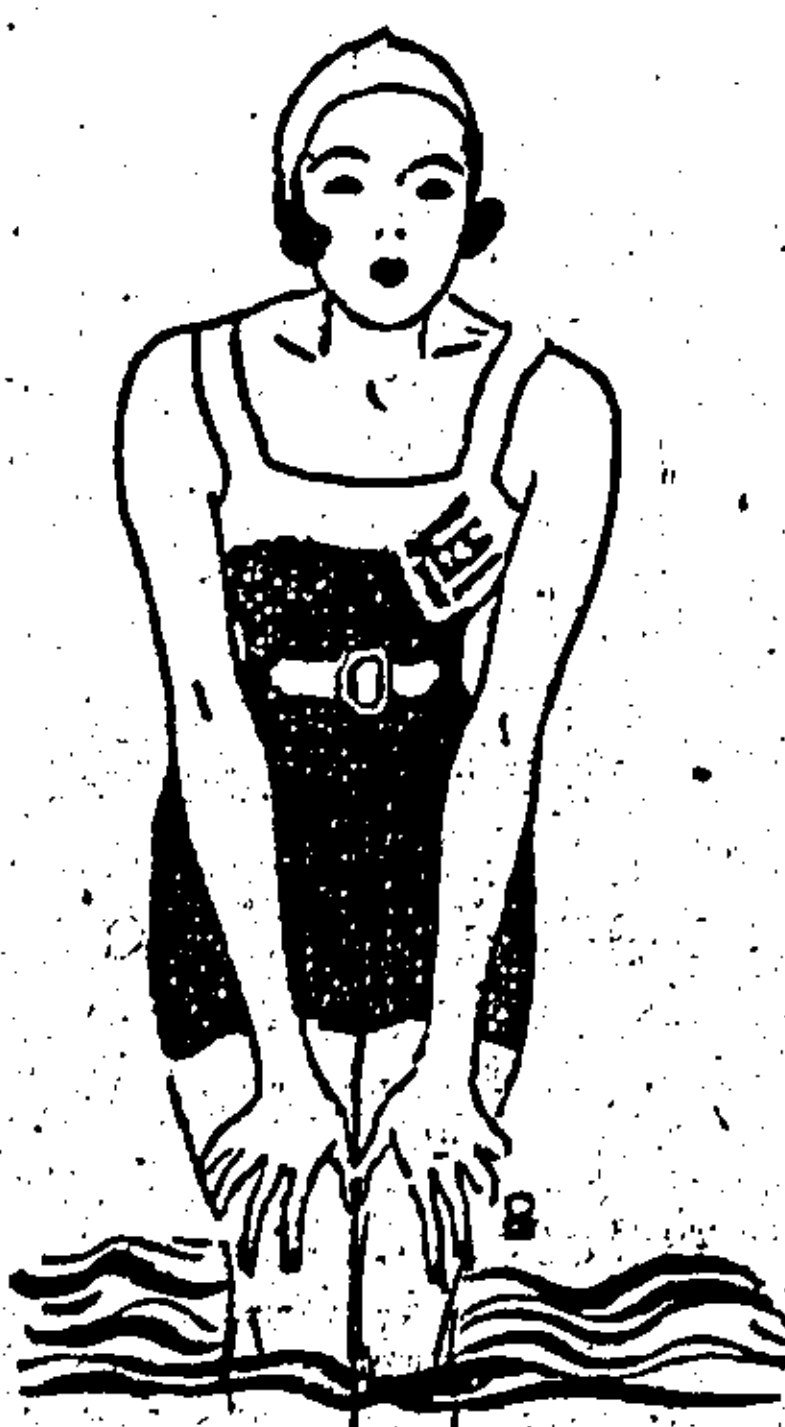

Baldness, the complaint of shingled women, is being seriously dealt with by London hair specialists. Not long ago it was said that if only women would brush their hair really hard every day there would be no danger of their becoming bald, but apparently something more than that is needed.

One specialist is giving his clients pills, to strengthen and improve the colour of the hair.

There is a theory that hair must breathe, and this sleeking of it to the head stops the air from getting to the roots, and gradually promotes greasiness and loss of colour, but this may be entirely wrong—certainly the question of baldness has only come up again with the revival of the shingle.

How To Wash Buckskin Gloves.

Buckskin gloves are troublesome to wash as, if they are to turn out successfully, they need to be washed constantly during the drying process. Additionally, they need special treatment to preserve the colour. The gloves should be washed in warm soapy water, rinsed, and squeezed as dry as possible. Rub over the outside of the gloves with a little pipeclay mixed to a paste with vinegar. Allow the gloves to dry gradually, preferably out of doors, pulling them into shape as they dry and rubbing them to keep a fold of cloth with a fairly hot iron.

"HAPPY EVER AFTER"—CENTRAL THEATRE

There is abundance of marriage in "Happy Ever After", the bright and airy comedy which is the current attraction at the Central Theatre.
Three well-known laugh-makers, Jack Hubert, Cicely Courtneidge and Sonnie Hale, are in the leading roles, supported by the beautiful Lillian Harvey, Edward Chapman and Clifford Heatherley.
Two bright window-cleaners befriend a stranded circus girl and take her to their home, which consists of a couple of disused railway-carriages. Matters go along smoothly until the girl admits to both men in turn that she loves them equally.
It is an unusual situation and the girl soon realises that she has upset a happy home, but the end of the story goes with the title and the girl marries one of them in the hope that they will live happy ever after.

"THE DEVIL IS DRIVING"—QUEEN'S THEATRE

"The Devil is Driving" now showing at the Queen's Theatre, is a story of the motor-car thiefing racket which is employed in the U.S.A.
Edmund Lowe, in the leading role, is seen as a mechanic in a garage which is nothing but a "centre" where stolen cars are kept. The garage also acts as the "front" of a luxurious speakeasy in which the directing minds of the enterprise live in armed security.
It is not until his brother-in-law is murdered that Edmund Lowe decides to clean up the gang, which he succeeds in doing after a series of thrilling adventures.
Wynne Gibson, Lois Wilson and James Gleason are in the supporting cast.

"CYNARA"—KING'S THEATRE.

"Cynara," now showing at the King's Theatre is a story of the eternal triangle told in a new way. Ronald Colman heads the brilliant cast, which includes Kay Francis, Phyllis Barry and Henry Stephenson.
The story, which is based on the novel, "An Imperfect Lover," by Mr. Gore-Brown, is a humanly romantic drama of a happily married man, who, in his wife's absence, becomes involved in a love affair with a shopgirl. The intrigue results in the wreck of his home and happiness.
Ronald Colman surpasses himself as the husband and Kay Francis, as his forgiving wife, gives one of the finest performances of her career.

BRIDGE NOTES

THE CULBERTSON MATCH

AMERICANS UNBEATABLE

By CAPT. LINDSAY MUNDY.

My match against Mr. Ely Culbertson affords one lesson far weightier than any mere question of Bridge, namely, the criminal folly of being quixotic. Because I was behind on the first day's play I disobeyed doctor's orders and played the following day. The next day I was totally incapable of leaving my bed, and because the match was then in a hopeless position I waived my right to postponement.
Through doing this it was claimed that my bets on whether I should be beaten by 5,000 or by 10,000 also went by default, though they were far from being in a hopeless condition. I make no comment, except to say that I am so dissatisfied with the controversy over the side bets, which I have decided to pay, though in my opinion they were not due, that I am retiring from any further participation in public contests and disbanding my team.
"Combining Flair with System"
Why was it that we were beaten so badly? My great friend and partner, Ewart Kempson, asks me to publish this statement from him: "The Approach-Forcing System did not beat the Direct System. Four first-class American players won on their merits because the home team, especially myself on the first day, tried to combine flair with system."
I do not for one moment deny that the American team won on their merits, and I entirely agree that it was not on the merits of the Approach System. We did not do ourselves justice by a long way, but we should have lost even if we had done so.

Below Form.

One the first day Kempson played far below his form, which is very high indeed. Huston and Wraith played really well that day, but on the second day the fall away considerably. As to myself, on that second day I merely kept going with the assistance of champagne and aspirin, and plead guilty to six atrocious bids which I should never have made under ordinary conditions. Here are two of them: As non-vulnerable dealer, I held:
Spades—Q J 9 3
Hearts—K 10 8
Diamonds—Q 2
Clubs—Q J 9 8
and bid one No-Trump on the ultraminimum. On being raised to Two, I should, of course, have passed, but foolishly bid Three

"CRUISER EMDEN"—STAR THEATRE.
"Cruiser Emden," now showing at the Star Theatre, is a film depicting the daring exploits of the most famous of all the German sea-raiders during the Great War. Action commences following the departure of the Emden from Tsingtao in late 1914. Her exploits in the Indian Ocean, ending with her memorable fight with the Australian cruiser, "Sydney," are told in graphic, realistic manner, replete with thrills and exciting sequences.
Louis Ralph plays the part of Captain Von Muller, the Captain of the "Emden."

"GERMAN COLONIAL LEAGUE"

Four Societies Merge Into Union.

COLONIES "UNJUSTLY HELD"

Frankfurt on Main.
There is to be one German colonial association instead of four in future.
A decision to merge the four German colonial societies into a single union called the "German Colonial League" (Reichskolonialbund) was reached at the annual meeting of the societies, held in Frankfurt.
Telegrams announcing the resolution were then sent to President von Hindenburg, Herr Hitler, Baron von Neurath, and Captain Goering.
At the first meeting of the new Reichskolonialbund the Bavarian Governor, General von Epp, who is regarded as the Colonial adviser of the Nazis, expressed the Government's appreciation of the new step.
He said that Germany was not in the position to follow a course of active Colonial policy at present, because other more urgent problems within Germany proper and on her frontiers had to be settled.
The German Government, he said, had not power enough to demand a speedy return of the Colonies "unjustly captured" by their former adversaries and "unjustly held" by them under mandatory powers given by the League of Nations.
But the German nation suffered from lack of room within its own restricted frontiers and was simply compelled to try and regain its colonies, in order to develop settlements for an ever increasing population, and in order to obtain from the soil those Colonial products which were necessary for her population and her industry.
The nation as a whole, he asserted, would now have to take the lead in the question of regaining colonies and this force its will upon the government.
Their restoration would no doubt be reached in the long run, for the German youth of to-day were united in the great national movement which had begun to comprehend that colonial possessions in tropical countries like Africa were a grim necessity to Germany, as there remained no likelihood of German extension within the boundaries of Europe.
General von Epp in the days of his Colonial experience fought in the Boxer campaign and in the Herero war of South West Africa.—Reuter.

OWNER TENANT
FLAT SCHEME*Malaguna Mansions
Project.*BUILDING TO BEGIN SHORTLY

Work on Malaguna Mansions, Chatham Road, Kowloon, the $800,000 building of 7 storeys containing 112 flats, which is to be constructed in Chatham Road, Kowloon, is to commence shortly. When completed, the building will be the largest block of flats in the Colony.

Malaguna Mansions are being built by the Perpetual Trust Company.

It is the intention of the Company to offer the flats to approved residents in the Colony at a moderate rental, and to launch a co-operative scheme whereby the tenant will become the owner of his flat within 12 years. This co-operative scheme is the idea of Mr. J. Cassel, Manager of the Perpetual Trust Company.

Each flat-holder will become a shareholder in a Co-operative company, his share being represented by a flat, which he may occupy himself or sub-let to an approved tenant. A small initial payment—the purchase price of one share—will be required, the rest of the purchase price being paid by the monthly rental of the flats over a period of twelve years.

The building will then have become the property of the shareholders, actually the flat-owners, who will thenceforward only contribute their share of the rates and taxes.

The scheme has been sponsored by prominent local business men, with Sir Robert Ho Tung as head of the Board of Directors.

Applications for shares may be made at the offices of the Perpetual Trust Company, Asia Life Building, where full particulars can be obtained, and the completed plans of the building and the Company's prospectus inspected.

The building will cover an area of over 70,000 square feet, with a frontage on Chatham Road of 305 feet.

A grass terrace, similar to that in front of the Peninsula Hotel, but some six times larger, will form a garden common to all the occupants of the flats.

The building, which has been designed by Mr. S. L. Wong, is thoroughly modern in character. The self-contained flats of four and six rooms will each be provided with two bathrooms, kitchen, pantry, two servants' rooms and a large verandah.

Eight electric lifts, running at all hours, will be at the service of the tenants.

NELSON'S PRIVATE
LOG-BOOK*Lord Wakefield's Gift
To Nation.*RELICS FOR BRITISH MUSEUM

London. Lord Wakefield rescued for the nation the log-book kept by the sailing-master of the Victory, Nelson's famous flag-ship. Then he "rescued" the sword of honour which the City of London presented to Nelson after the Battle of the Nile. Both these relics are now in the British Museum.

Soon, beside the log of the Victory will lie the personal log, written in Nelson's queer left-handed script, which the Admiral kept during the five months preceding the Battle of Trafalgar.

The book has already been handed over to the British Museum, and will be on view when it has been officially accepted by the trustees. In October, Lord Wakefield bought the relic for £3,000 from Mr. George Eyre Matcham. Mr. Matcham is a descendant of Nelson's favourite sister who inherited the book.

One of the strangest things about the book is that Nelson made the mistake of dating the first entry 1785 instead of 1805. It is thought that his mind must have been turned back to some personal incident 20 years before when he was writing.—Reuter.

CUTTING OUT THE CADET

Jerusalem.

An Englishman, Constable J. P. T. Ford, has been appointed acting Assistant Superintendent of Police here.

He is the first constable to be promoted to commissioned rank in accordance with the recommendation made two years ago by Sir Herbert Downbiggin, Inspector-General of the Ceylon Police. Sir Herbert urged at the time that advancement should be available for constables of outstanding merit.

The number of British constables of public school education now in the Palestine police force is quite considerable.

According to a statement here, the promotion of a man from within the force instead of sending out cadet officers from England shows that the Colonial Office has sufficient confidence now in the Palestine force, and is a tribute to the high standard of recruits joining in England.

The Hon. Mervyn Patrick Wingfield, only son and heir of Viscount Powerscourt, joined the Palestine Police as a constable in August, 1932, and resigned later to marry Miss Sheila Beddington, of London.—Reuter.

NO VISITORS FOR TWO YEARS

Khabarovsk, Siberia.

The little island of Wrangel in the Arctic Ocean has a situation which makes it truly the Tristan da Cunha of the North.

For four years this solitude 71 degrees north of the Yarkutsk (Siberia) coast has been inhabited by a small Soviet colony.

For exactly two years now it has been unvisited by any ship.

Last summer the steamer "Soviet," was sent to deliver foodstuffs, equipment and a new party of seal hunters. Owing to unfavourable weather she failed to reach the island.

The islanders reply for sustenance on coastal and inland fishing. Walrus and seals come to Wrangel island in great herds and it has numbers of polar bears and white foxes, and occasionally blue foxes and red foxes.

But whereas Tristan da Cunha is occupied by a philosophic conservative community, the colonists on Wrangel Island have ambitious projects. They want to snare enough of the white foxes to start a farm for pelt-breeding purposes, and they have in mind the installation of a small plant on the coast for extracting seal oil.

Attempts are also being made for the development of a deer breeding farm, although it is still uncertain how many deer the island's lichen will support through the winter months.

Another industry on this lively island is the search for mammoth tusks. So far several hundreds of pounds of mammoth ivory have been unearthed.—Reuter.

THINK of the thousands of dollars you have paid away in rent over the last twelve years—and what have you to show for it?—NOTHING.—

Why continue throwing away money when by becoming a tenant of Malaguna Mansions for that period you will own a flat conservatively valued at $15,000.00.

If you have $3,000.00, in the bank, and are paying rent to a landlord, can you advance any reason why you should not become a joint owner in this great co-operative building scheme? The soundest and safest investment for the small investor ever offered in the Colony.

If you are not in need of a flat yourself—sub-let at a profit and let your tenant pay off the instalments for you.

Will Mr. Roosevelt Succeed?

President Roosevelt's main purpose in his nation-wide address broadcast to his countrymen is to enlist universal support for the general code of "fair competition" which he wishes to see accepted, and worked, temporarily, by the whole of American industry. He is undoubtedly well-advised in believing that the most potent impetus that can be given to the plan is that of his own still overwhelmingly popular personality. His words, then, mark the opening of that vast organised propaganda which, he hopes, will engage an irresistible public opinion in the task of making rejection of the "blanket" code by any employers morally impossible. Acceptance may be expected under such pressure. The question what will happen then is related to the question whether the application of this policy does or does not coincide with the beginnings of a real turn for the better in the business situation. The scheme is too hasty an improvisation to be capable by itself alone of turning an unsound balance of supply and demand into a sound one. It is an immense and unprecedented proposition that every industrial employer in the United States should work to a uniform code of hours and wages; the hours shorter and the wages higher than those now prevailing. That, says Mr. Roosevelt, is going to be attempted, despite the very grave warnings that have been raised against so rough a method of instituting the most drastic changes in the operation of industries in which there exists, at present, an immense variety of working conditions and regional costs of living. The real Roosevelt policy for such change contemplates the working out in detail, in consultation with employers and workers, of a separate code for each separate industry; and many such codes are in process of elaboration now. But if those codes are to be fair, the "blanket" code cannot be in the same sense fair. That is not to say that it must prove unworkable; and it is most earnestly to be hoped that it may not so prove, since a breakdown might fatally impair confidence in the more scientific scheme. The answer, however, to all objection is that the Government has found itself forced to make an immediate and large addition to national purchasing power by the only means available—getting more labour to work at higher wages. For it has been confronted with the fact that, while production has gone ahead rapidly in the past few months, consumption has increased very little. The essence of the Roosevelt effort has been to prevent the building up of new accumulations of unwanted goods, leading to renewed stagnation. It is sought now to create suddenly a vast new body of demand which may overtake the increase of production. The effectiveness of the new demand is to be safeguarded by the very important provision of the code which forbids raising prices above the level of July 1, except to the extent of actual increases of working costs. There is to be no reaping of higher profits from the increased demand; the operation of that "iron law" is to be suspended, lest it strangle the new consumption at birth. Such is the huge experiment with economic forces that is to be carried on until all the separate industrial codes for regulating competition and increasing demand have been put into operation. Popular enthusiasm for "action" is, to all appearance, at white-heat. Whether the most individualistic people in the world will learn to hug the chains of strict industrial regulation is among the most vital questions of the immediate future.

Prince's Lead On The Slum Problem.

The Prince of Wales's personal attack on the slum problem was carried another step forward in his letter to the Housing Association of the Anglo-Catholic Congress. It shows the Prince, not for the first time, as possessing a grasp of the "iron law" of economics, and by no means simple practical aspects of a question to which he has given much fruitful thought. On this occasion he refers to the part which can be played by organised voluntary agencies in the anti-slum campaign, by way both of giving a lead to public opinion and of extending that financial help which recent legislation has empowered them to offer. The point is shrewdly made in the Prince's letter that local authorities, with whom the prime responsibility rests, will not commonly be willing to embark on schemes in behalf of which local feeling has not been aroused. In this sense the value of voluntary work may be decisive. It may, moreover, be invaluable in helping to provide, in dealing with tenants, that human personal touch that can smooth away so many difficulties in the path of all social reform. The outstanding example of what voluntary effort can accomplish in this matter is, assuredly, the Prince himself. The Government's five-year plan of campaign against the rooted evil has met with enthusiastic public approval, and is moving the dispraise of slumdom ought to be swept away, his personal part in the work will be no small one.

Fantastic Zionist Proposal

A project to settle a quarter of a million German Jews in Palestine will be considered at the Zionist Congress, to be held at Prague.

It is a fantastic proposal. The Holy Land could not possibly support such an immigration. The recently approved British loan of £2,000,000, indeed, was largely for the resettlement of those Arabs who have been dispossessed by Jewish immigration.

Another proposal is the extension of the Jewish settlement into Trans-Jordan. Zionists will support this plea by pointing out that certain Arab sheiks, depressed by the economic situation, are said to be willing to sell their land.

The British view is that Trans-Jordan should be a purely Arab country.

effect is owing to the active association of the Prince with this cause cannot be computed; but no one who understands Britain can doubt that the value of it has been and will be enormous. By such utterances as his Guildhall speech last May, and such actions as his visit to the new dwellings on his own estate in Kensington, he places all the influence of his position and his immense popularity at the service of a movement that needs every ounce of driving power that can be bestowed on it. If, as the Prince has said, this generation is the one in which the disgrace of slumdom ought to be swept away, his personal part in the work will be no small one.

HOLIDAY WITH THE GIPSIES

STRANGE ADVENTURES AMONG ROMANIES

"VAGABOND" TOURS EUROPE

(By Dr. Walter Starkie.)

In all of us there are two selves. As our first conventional self we go through life mechanically, paying meticulous attention to what our neighbours say of us; our second self is always clamouring to be released from the prison of everyday mediocrity to which we are condemned.

Nobody who possesses a vagabond second self should ever put on his gipsy clothes before the sun has set on the last day of term: they should be locked in the lumber-room with seven keys, otherwise they might behave like the magic shoes in the fairy tale and lead you a dance over the hills and far away.

On the eve of the holidays we should escort our conventional first self with all pomp and circumstance to the lumber-room and lock him up in the chest, but taking good care to pour a bottle of sparkling wine over him in order to lay his ghost. Then, with light heart and lighter purse, we should depart like the good sons in Grimm's fairy stories who set out at random from their father's house to conquer the world.

Feast Of Rejoicing

On one occasion when I was wandering along the roads in Transylvania with a gipsy, he described for me how the wandering tribes set out in the spring.

They have a feast of rejoicing called the "Kakkava," or "feast of the copper pans," on the day of St. George, April 23. "For three days," said he, "every gipsy man, woman and child goes daft: they don't trust the younger members, drink, they sing, they play, they drag out their tents in you to the plain, they harness their horses to the carts; they sacrifice lambs and they wreath the wine jars in flowers. For the feast of St. George is the beginning of the year."

On that day no man is allowed to curse or quarrel, and woe to the policeman who tries to set foot within the flowering meadow when the tribes are collected around their be-ribboned carts and traps.

After that day the tribes will scatter in all directions, wandering from place to place, bivouacking in the plain, and when the shadows fall the carts will be drawn up beneath trees, and fiddles and "cobzars" will sound in the night, creating the wild untutored harmony which inspires the frantic dances of the Bacchantes.

There is a Serbian proverb which says, "A Tzigan woman suckled me; that is why I have wings." When the nomadic gipsies enter their frenzy they give wings to us who listen, for they bring all the Eastern romance in their wildness.

The Gipsy Spell

Such is the gipsy spell which leads sane, prosaic men off on a wild chase, as though they were following the Firebird.

Roaming with the gipsies becomes a passion which it is dangerous to deny, for it springs from the wild, eccentric second self. Whenever I set off on the gipsy trail it takes some time before I can free my wandering personality.

At first I am attached to my life of ease and indulgence. I find the roads long; I am conscious of my obesity, my shortness of breath. Then gradually I become inured to hardship and I enjoy the simple meals of raw ham and a few sprigs of raw garlic washed down by rough red wine that tastes of leather. The sense of adventure then usual importance for, apart from the consideration that the medical profession in the Union is numerically well served, the South African Medical and Pharmacy Act demands that every practitioner in South Africa shall hold certain specified qualifications which include South African, British and Italian degrees.

The possession of a German degree does not entitle a doctor to practise in South Africa and this means that if German doctors from Germany wish to emigrate to the Union, they must first obtain the necessary certificates. Reuter.

a traditional attachment to the arch gate of the town, for formerly they were never allowed to pass within.

One night in July 1931 I stood near the arch of Saint Estehan at Burgos and I saw three ragged, brown-faced fellows lurking in the shadows. It was easy to see that they were gipsies by their mahogany complexion, their flashing eyes and brilliantly white teeth.

"Are you Roma?" I asked in Roman. "Where are the tents?" The two youths started back in surprise. "What? You, one of the 'Cales'?" Why, we thought you were a 'payllo'."

After the introduction it was necessary to say the password and mention the name of other gipsy chiefs, for in that way I might enter the tribe as a guest.

"Ah, yes, brothers, I have come from another country, but I bring news of Aurelio the cross-eyed, and so you must welcome me."

"Don't Trust Youngsters"

Among the gipsies nicknames often perform the functions of passwords, and if the stranger knows them he may go from one end of Spain to the other and find all the gipsy tents and houses open to him.

After leaving the arch with my two companions we set off for the camp, which was in a lane at the back of a neighbouring hill.

As I walked along with the two ragged youths I remembered the words of warning of an older Roman. "Whenever you meet a tribe of gipsies in the deserted country, don't trust the younger members, for they might pick a quarrel with you and tear the clothes off your back and leave you stripped in the ditch with a wound in the head. The best course is to inquire at once for the 'puro rom,' or old man of the tribe, for he is the 'Krallica,' or King, and his word is law. Once you have told him the password you will be as safe as in church. The old man of the tribe is the grandfather: he leads an enviable existence, for all the men and women serve him, and he is a dictator.

When we reached the camp we found him lying asleep in the grass, with his hat down over his eyes and his "chuguri," a bound beside him. When we woke him he scrambled to his feet and peered into my face muttering: "You are not one of the Cales—why you're a white face!"

JEWISH DOCTORS AS REFUGEES

Many Seeking Entry To South Africa.

FURTHER DEGREE REQUIRED

Pretoria. Following on the anti-Jewish policy of the German Government there are indications that quite a number of Jewish doctors in Germany are contemplating starting practices in South Africa. A number of applications have already been received from Jewish doctors deprived of a living in Germany by some of the Universities, by the South African Medical Council and the Department of Public Health.

These applications have been under consideration for some time and present a problem of more than usual importance for, apart from the consideration that the medical profession in the Union is numerically well served, the South African Medical and Pharmacy Act demands that every practitioner in South Africa shall hold certain specified qualifications which include South African, British and Italian degrees.

The possession of a German degree does not entitle a doctor to practise in South Africa and this means that if German doctors from Germany wish to emigrate to the Union, they must first obtain the necessary certificates. Reuter.

LIVERPOOL TO CAPE IN BABY CAR

13,370 Miles In 185 Days.

THRILLING DESERT CROSSING

Cape Town.

Another triumph for British cars was scored when Messrs. Alan Gilk and Walter Kay came to the end of their "long, long trail" down Africa from Liverpool in their little 8 h.p. Morris Minor, its diminutive wheels having carried them a distance, all told, of 13,370 miles. Their trip took 185 days, including halts and delays, which at times extended to weeks.

They had many exciting experiences. Tribal trouble caused them to make a detour of 1,600 miles from Tangiers where they discovered that south of Fez their direct route was barred to them. Trouble had broken out among the desert tribes and this was engaging the attention of the French Foreign Legion.

For over 7,000 miles the travellers were in French territory, French being the language spoken practically all the way from Boulogne to the Belgian Congo. The French authorities at first refused point blank to grant permission for the Sahara crossing with such a "useless" little car, as they described it. The main desert is 850 miles across with many more miles on each side where the difference is hard to detect. Over this stretch the Morris carried a native pilot and ran—by order—in consort, part of the way, with huge Renault buses mounting machine-guns for protection against attack by Tuareg raiders.

Low Petrol Consumption.

Many of the desert tracks are exceptionally good, over 360 miles being covered in one long day. With a scorching temperature, 12 gallons of water were carried but at the end of the run the car had only used half a gallon.

The total consumption of petrol amounted to 437 gallons, equal to an average of over 30 miles per gallon, lubricating oil consumption being under 15 gallons for the whole run.

One of the loneliest petrol pumps in the world is at Bindon, Cinq where the price paid was 10/- per gallon.

While naturally gratified to have achieved their ambition, they confess that "once is enough."—Reuter.

DONKEY BETRAYS THIEF

Craving For Cigarettes Lead To Arrest.

IDENTIFICATION PROBLEM SOLVED

Nairobi.

A donkey's craving for cigarettes led to the arrest of a stock thief in Kenya.

In the outlying part of the country near the foot of Mount Kenya half a dozen donkeys were stolen from a European farm.

Two days previously the owner's native herdsman had been dismissed. The only clue in the possession of the police was the fact that 50 miles away another settler wanted to buy donkeys.

An inspector, accompanied by a native policeman, trekked across country, and on arrival at this farm found no trace of the donkeys, but discovered the discharged herdsman, who was arrested on suspicion.

While the party was returning by motor-car the native policeman suddenly placed his fingers on the pulse of the suspect, started straight in his eyes, and in a low voice said: "Where are the stolen donkeys?"

As if mesmerised, the suspect said: "Behind those bushes."

The car was stopped and the donkeys were found hidden.

Then the question of identification arose, but the owner of the donkeys, who was travelling with the party, was equal to the occasion. Taking a cigarette from his case he placed it in the palm of his hand and whistled while one of the donkeys came forward and restfully ate the cigarette.

The suspect resignedly said in his own language: "I guess that spells the beard," and forthwith confessed.—Reuter.

PLAIN SPEAKING ON THE W.E.C.

Soothing Speeches To Hide Failure.

CO-OPERATION ONLY REMEDY

(By LESLIE R. ALDOUS.)

When the World Economic and Monetary Conference opened on June 12 nobody expected the delegates from 66 countries to solve all the world's troubles in the short space of six weeks. It seemed reasonable to hope, in view of the careful preparations that had been carried out that a solid start would be made. Actually, not one of the major problems on the agenda has yielded to agreement.

All the soothing speeches of the statesmen cannot obliterate that stark fact from the public mind. Every speaker at the closing meeting, with the conspicuous exception of the Soviet delegate, anticipated and eloquently denied the charge of failure. It would have strengthened their arguments enormously if, short of prophesying when the Conference would succeed, they could have given a definite date for its resumption.

"Orderly Retreat."

Nevertheless, in spite of the clouds of disappointment hanging heavily over the Conference Hall, the conclusion of the first act in the economic drama was not in the least what one might have anticipated. Instead of a collapse in confusion, delegates gave the impression of retreating in good order before "forces over which they had no control."

To an eye-witness, in fact, the friendly atmosphere seemed the most hopeful omen for the future. One had half-fearful that many nations, for the purpose of whitewashing themselves, would throw mud at somebody else. The unedifying spectacle of the United States or some other Power being made the target of blame would have ended the Conference on an ugly note, thereby diminishing the chances of its ever meeting again.

On the other hand, the "circumstances over which we have no control" attitude is not likely to get very far if and when the time comes to call the delegates together again. It is the very political and economic sophistry against which one of our most challenging thinkers, Sir Norman Angell, has vigorously protested in "The Great Illusion."

Economic war, like battles of high explosives and poison gas, is not to be put in the same category as earthquakes. Nationalistic policies have contributed to the present depression, and a reversal of those policies can help to heal the wound. All the delegates in London were agreed that the remedy lay in the direction of international co-operation. How long will it take them to translate theory into practice?

SPECIAL COURSE OF SERMONS.

Announcement By The Bishop.

As Monday is a Bank Holiday, the Men's Tiffin Discussion Group announced for that day will be held over till Tuesday, September 5, at Messrs. Lane, Crawford and Co.'s.

The remaining Discussion Groups will be held as previously announced, viz.—Women's Group at Helena May Institute, 10.30 a.m. Friday, September 8, and the Mixed Group at the Bishop's House at 8 p.m. on Friday, September 8.

News In Brief.

Messrs. Caldbeck, Macgregor and Co., Ltd., wholesale and retail wine merchants in the Far East, announce the issue of a new price list showing substantial reductions.

An interesting advertising device, in the form of a mirror which is transformed instantaneously into transparent glass when illuminated from the rear, is now being exhibited in the No. 1 shop of the Gloucester Arcade.

The changing of the cable of the Peak Tramway necessitated the suspension of the service from 7 o'clock last night till 6 o'clock this morning, when the normal time-table was resumed.

ADMIRAL'S STIRRING SPEECH

"Evans Of The Broke — Philosopher."

URGE FOR PATRIOTISM AND RELIGION

Durban.

"I view with some apprehension the gathering storm clouds, of further reduction and Disarmament—what British sailor would not? We citizens of the British Empire have a great heritage as a Commonwealth of Nations won for us by our forefathers and I believe it is the job of every one of our citizens, male and female, to preserve and protect our possessions and our rights."

This was one of the many striking passages in a speech made by Vice-Admiral E. R. G. Evans, C.B., D.S.O., Commander-in-Chief of the Africa Station, who was in delightfully philosophic mood at a meeting of Durban Rotarians.

"Some people consider patriotism," he said, "to be merely a sentiment. My view is that patriotism towards the country of one's birth or adoption becomes one's bounden duty, otherwise one should get out and go elsewhere. Patriotism is a family business and I hate folks who won't fight for the family welfare."

He declared his religion to be that of the healthy primitive man. "The world is changing very rapidly and it is no good hanging back and being old fashioned," he said. "We want leaders, we want them badly and I sometimes fear that the Old Gang are suppressing our would-be leaders because of their modernity and because the Old Gang won't see that mass education must make for a constant change."

The Vice-Admiral went on to say that unconsciously he had divided his life into a series of principles, ideals, ambitions, likes and dislikes, and creeds. Here are some of his principles:— "I never owe money, except to the Admiralty and I always endeavour to repay hospitality—a very big job in this country where, from what I have seen, your hospitality is unbounded."

I do my utmost to give those around me a good time, provided they do their job efficiently and cheerfully. I realise that by nature I am impractical and rebellious and so I must have principles or come to grief.

But I have a very strong sense of duty to the great nation which employs me and this helps me to develop the principles which are sufficient for the day.—Reuter.

CYCLE ACCIDENT AT KOWLOON

Police Inspector Injured.

COLLISION WITH CAR NEAR STAR FERRY.

Divisional Inspector L. P. Lane, of the Hong Kong Police, was somewhat severely injured yesterday morning when the cycle combination which he was riding came into collision with a car driven by Mrs. J. M. D'Almada Remedios, wife of the well-known local solicitor.

Inspector Lane was descending the slope of the Water Police Station, Kowloon, towards Salisbury Road, when he saw the car coming from the direction of the Star Ferry wharf.

He applied the brake, but apparently his foot slipped and the car struck the rear of the cycle broadside on.

Inspector Lane was heavily thrown and received a dislocated collar-bone and cuts to the right leg, necessitating his removal to the Kowloon Hospital.

LOW RAINFALL FIGURES.

2.94 Inches In August.

Only 2.94 inches of rainfall were recorded at the Botanical Gardens during the month of August, according to a statement from the Director of the Botanical and Forestry Department.

Rainfall occurred on only nine days during the month, the largest amount for a single day being shown on August 8, with 1.32 inches. No rain fell for 16 days from August 15 to August 31.

To-Day's Short Story.

THAT FOOL OF A MABEL

By Freda M. Winter.

I HAVE known Mabel and Henry ever since we were all about seventeen. We used to go tramping together over the commons that stretched for miles north of Endlehead. And our friendship has gone on, really rather wonderfully, all these years.

Mabel and I both had posts in London to begin with. We met quite frequently in town, and often went home for week-ends and joined up with Henry and a few others and had a wonderful time. Then, at twenty-three, I was offered a good post in Paris, for two years at least. I was thrilled, of course, and I don't believe I thought of Henry till the last, and then it was all a rush.

I couldn't get home that first summer, for I had no proper holiday, and when I came home for Christmas, I found that Henry had been dragged off by his family to Bournemouth. So it was not until the next summer that I realised how things were going, for we were none of us very good at "revealing" letters. Now that I know the sort of game Mabel was playing I quite understand that she couldn't have revealed anything. And Henry, though he is the blurring kind when you have him face to face, is most unsatisfactory on paper.

I arrived home about half-past three, I remember, hot, tired, and in need of tea and peace. But Diana came to tea: Diana is my elder sister. She had been married two years then, and having no children and few responsibilities, and plenty of time, she knew everything.

"I suppose you've heard about Mabel and Henry?" she asked brightly—a little too brightly, I thought.

"No—are they married or something?" I asked, thinking I might as well plunge in at the deepest spot. "Folish Behaviour."

"Not yet," said Diana, significantly, "and if that fool of a Mabel goes on as she is going they probably never will be. Why, Henry's a catch, my dear girl," she said, as if I needed convincing. "The old man's dying to give up and leave the whole show to Henry. And everybody likes him. It's his face—an absolute fortune. And he's really rather a dear. Only he mustn't be allowed to get fat. And that fool of a Mabel—"

"You don't mean she's refused him," I said. My job in Paris, for all its fascination, suddenly seemed a little empty and shallow. I found myself wondering if I could try to be "second-best" to Henry.

"No. She's thinking it over, and getting herself and him into an appalling state. It's been going on for weeks."

"But why?"

"She's suffering from a broken heart."

"A what? Mabel?"

"Oh! some absurd affair soon after she went to London, apparently. An actor or film star, or something in that line."

MONDAY'S STORY

Monday's story will be "In The Country," by Guy de Maupassant.

Mabel came round that very evening and poured it all out. Of course, I knew his name—Rex Bertoglio. He had been a comparatively unknown actor then—it was nearly five years ago—but had since gone to Hollywood and become famous.

"I discovered that Endlehead was his home until he was twenty," Mabel said. "I think that was the first bond between us. I met him at a party. No, I never told you—I was shy because I knew at once it was a really big thing—you know the feeling. And it was all over so quickly. He went away, and I was so desperately miserable—I didn't want anyone to know—it was easier that way—"

Words fail me about Mabel at that time. However, three months later I had a letter from Mabel, saying that she had come to the conclusion that the best thing she could do with her life was to marry Henry.

It's eight years now since they were married, and there are three children. The first time I went to see them in their new home, and saw a large photograph of Rex Bertoglio on the bedroom mantelpiece, I really did lose my temper. I told Mabel she was an inconsiderate little fool.

"Oh! but, darling," Mabel protested, "Henry understands—he understands perfectly—he loves me so marvellously—"

Well, the photograph has stayed there, but apart from that, Mabel, to do her justice rose to the marriage quite well. She's a splendid mother. And Henry has been a wonderful husband. I suppose the knowledge that he was only second best has kept him from developing any tiresome traits.

Then, suddenly, a few weeks ago, I had a hectic letter from Mabel. The gist of it was that Rex Bertoglio was coming to England for a holiday, and was to spend a week at Endlehead. She enclosed me a newspaper cutting to this effect:—"I know you've got a week's leave to come soon," Mabel wrote, "and you simply must arrange it so that you are here then. He's staying at the Moorside Hotel up by the lake, but one never knows what may happen—"

I thought of Henry and went. I found him looking slightly dazed. He had obviously thought the whole thing was dead and buried, in spite of that photograph, and here was that fool of a Mabel digging it up again, and looking tragic and declaring she dared not go out, as it would be "so silly, don't you think, to risk meeting him?"

But she was reckoning without Henry. All went well until the Friday afternoon. I was shopping in the High Street, and as it was a hot and tiring day I decided to drop into Denison's Cafe for some tea. As I crossed the road I saw Henry striding along from his office. He looked flushed, and uncomfortable, and gesticulated rather wildly when he saw me. I waited for him and we went into Denison's together. "I've asked him to dinner to-morrow evening," and "I wish to Heaven I hadn't," he blurted. "Who? Not Rex Bertoglio?" I exclaimed.

SPALDING for Speed

The all-important factor in modern lawn tennis is speed and yet more speed. Other things being equal the man with that extra speed wins the match.

The new Spalding laminated multi-ply rackets are the fastest and most powerful ever produced. They can be strung to the highest possible tension without risk of warping thus giving tremendous pace to the ball as it leaves the racket.

The Spalding range of rackets for 1933 comprises seventeen attractive models at prices to suit all purses.

V.R.C. OPEN CHAMPIONSHIPS

SOARES FAVOURED FOR LONG PLUNGE

LAWRENCE MAY WIN THE THROWING POLO BALL

FIRST LADIES' RACE TO-NIGHT

(By G.L.)

THE final V.R.C. gala for the season, which will commence to-night at 8.15 p.m., promises to provide the finest and most attractive swimming exhibition seen this season.

Two Championships, open to the Colony, the Long Plunge and Throwing the Water-Polo Ball, a quarter-mile Senior members' race, a ladies' event and an inter-members' water polo match are among the attractions on the programme.

At the conclusion of the swimming races, dancing will take place in the club-house to the strains of "Mickey's Melody Makers."

Garrod Not Competing

S. H. Garrod, who won the Colony Long Plunge event, at the V.R.C. last year when he distanced 61 feet 9 inches, will not defend his title as he left for Manila last night.

In his absence J. R. Soares, who won the event in 1931 with a distance of 60 feet, is the favourite. Soares, is well-known as a veteran V.R.C. water-polo player and has put in a great deal of practice this season.

His closest rivals are J. A. Victor who won in 1930 with 61 feet 9 inches, and the brothers, M. M. de V. and J. A. de V. Soares. Victor has recently returned from the North and has not had time to get into form this season. M. M. de V. Soares is entering for the first time, but his brother, J. A. de V. Soares, is not a newcomer to the event. Another serious competitor is E. B. da Rosa, the sprint swimmer.

Mr. C. J. Cooke, still an active member of the V. R. C., is the Colony record-holder for this event. He distanced 67 feet in 1928.

Throwing the Polo Ball
W. Lawrence will encounter stern opposition in the Throwing the Water-Polo Ball event, the result of which is a very open one. Lawrence is the only one of the seven entrants who has won the event previously, and his experience and constant practice during the year should make him the favourite.

It is to be regretted that W. Mullaby (H.M.S. Wishart), one of the two contestants outside the V. R. C. entrants in this event, will be unable to compete as his ship has left for Foochow.

The other "outside" competitor is Lan Sze Thiu, of the Chinese Athletic Association. Wong Siong Hing was the last Chinese to win the event in 1930.

F. Webb, who won this event last year, will not defend his title. Among the many "dark-horses" in this event are M. M. de V. Soares, the V.R.C. second water polo team goal-keeper, B. Gosano, and T. Paget.

Paget was a close second last year to Webb, and his improved physical condition, brought about through surf-board training, will make him a formidable challenger.

M. M. de V. Soares, has demonstrated that the end of the bath is quite near for him and the winner will have to clear further than this distance to win.

Longer Races

Throughout the season the Swimming Committee have gradually extended the distances in the V. R. C. members' handicap races, until now the senior class will be required to cover 440 yards. This has been done in order to encourage the members to increase their distance-swimming and so provide aspirants for the longer championship race, which at the moment are sadly lacking.

Lionel Roza-Pereira, the Colony's champion for this distance, will be the scratch man, and it is confidently expected that he will force the other competitors to their utmost while he himself should go close to his own record of 5 minutes 37 seconds.

J. R. Johnstone established the Colony's record for this distance, when he clocked 5:24 in 1928.

Both Lawrence and Roza have been in strict training during the past month for this extended race, as it will provide an adequate opportunity as a try-out for the forthcoming Championships open to the Colony.

A notable entrant in this race is H. L. Ozorio, the University's fastest swimmer. He has made great strides in his swimming since he won the V.R.C. Junior Championship.

A Coming Youngster
A. A. Roza, brother of E. B. da Rosa, is a likely winner in the Members "B" class 220 yards handicap event. In the heats last Wednesday Roza clocked 2 minutes 48 seconds for the distance, after giving 18 seconds start to B. Gosano. Roza has bettered this time in practice, and it is confidently expected that he will achieve an even better performance.

The handicapping is perhaps a little hard on the two scratch men, and I cannot see either of them winning.

The race will probably be decided between A. M. Rodrigues, the University, cricket captain, B. Gosano and J. Gutierrez.

M. M. de V. Soares, who competed in the Colony's Breast-stroke championship last year, should prove an easy winner in the Members "C" class 100 Yards Breast-stroke event. In the heats he clocked 83 seconds without unduly extending himself. J. D. Remedios is also a likely competitor in this event.

In the Members "C" class 75 yards Medley Race a close race should be seen between the Silva brothers, L. P. and Leo. Both have made very good progress after commencing the season as beginners.

The Ladies' Race

For the first time this season the V. R. C. are staging a ladies' race. Six entrants will compete in the 60 Yards handicap event, including Mrs. McMahon and Miss Doris Hunt. These two ladies will swim from scratch, and if her handicap is not too great, Mrs. McMahon should win.

She is one of the fastest lady sprinters in the Colony and her time for the 50 yards is almost as good as the Colony's best.

MRS. SCHREUDER AND W. T. CAMPBELL OUT FOR "TREBLES"

A. G. DONN

FOUR RECORDS LOWERED IN "Y" BATH

Donn's Sensational Win In 100 Yards.

MRS. SCHREUDER SETS COLONY RECORD TIME

Kwok Fails In Attempt On British Records

(By CRAWL)

Sensation followed sensation last night at the Y.M.C.A. Bath when two bath records were shattered and two new Association records were set up at the second night of the H.K.I.A.S.A. Championships.

A sensational recovery in the last lap of the Men's 100 Yards Free Style championship, saw A. G. Donn (Y.M.C.A.) sweep through to a magnificent victory over Leung Shui-man (C.B.C.), who beat him on Thursday evening in the Men's 50 Yards.

H. Lange, who caused a surprise by taking a substantial lead over Donn, Leung and Kwok Chun-hang in the first three lengths, was spent at the third and last turning and was placed fourth.

After Donn's complete eclipse in the Men's 50 Yards on Thursday evening when he was placed third, I was very much in doubt as to whether he would be able to carry off the 100 yards last night. Last night, however, we saw Donn at his best, and his last turn gave him a well deserved win by a yard.

Lange In The Lead

At the first turning, Lange increased his lead to a yard with his powerful push off and at the end of the second length was fully two yards ahead of the other trio.

Approaching the last lap Lange was leading by just under three yards with Donn and Leung fighting hard to catch up.

The last 20 yards was thrilling, Donn increasing his lead to touch fully a yard to the good of Leung with Kwok four yards behind.

Donn's time of 61.4/5 seconds is 3.7/10 better than his bath record set up last year in the Y.M.C.A. championships.

The second event last night, the Ladies' 200 Yards Breast Stroke, saw Mrs. A. C. Schreuder (Y.M.C.A.) secure her "double," having won the ladies' 50 Yards from Miss Yeung Sau-king on Thursday evening, she set up a new Colony record for the distance with a time of 3 mins. 16.4/5 seconds. Miss Yeung did not enter the final owing to indisposition.

The Results

The following were the results:

- Men's 100 Yards Free Style:—
1. A. G. Donn (Y.M.C.A.)
2. Leung Shui-man (C.B.C.)
3. Kwok Chun-hang (S.C.A.A.)
Time 61.4/5 sec. (Bath Record)
- Ladies' 200 Yards Breast Stroke:—
1. Mrs. A. C. Schreuder (Y.M.C.A.)
2. Miss Leung Yuk-chen (C.B.C.)
3. Miss Dora Lum (Chung Sing)
- Men's 50 Yards Breast Stroke:—
1. Mrs. A. C. Schreuder (Y.M.C.A.)
2. Chan Fook-sing (C.S.S.C.)
Time: 2 mins. 13.5/10 sec. (Record)
- Men's 440 Yards Free Style:—
1. W. T. Campbell (Y.M.C.A.)
2. H. G. Lange (Y.M.C.A.)
3. A. G. Donn (Y.M.C.A.)
Time: 6 mins. 13.5/5 sec. (Bath Record)

Y.M.C.A. SHOULD WIN BOTH RELAYS

EXHIBITION POLO GAME

OFFICIAL GUESTS FOR H.K.I.A.S.A. SPECIAL GALA

(By Crawl.)

MRS. A. C. Schreuder and W. T. Campbell, both representatives of the Y.M.C.A. will attempt to secure their "trebles" at the special gala which will conclude the Hong Kong International Amateur Swimming Association 1933 Championships in the Y.M.C.A. bath to-night, commencing at 9 p.m.

For the first time in the history of swimming in the Colony a Ladies' Relay race and a Ladies' Diving championship will be held, and those who have not forgotten the thrilling duel between the "Y" Ladies and South China at the Association gala of June 24, can look forward to an even more gruelling struggle to-night.

With the exception of the Men's and Ladies' 100 Yards Back Stroke championships, the Y.M.C.A. are expected to make a clean sweep to-night.

The night's programme will wind up with an exhibition game of water-polo between the Y.M.C.A. "A" Colony League champions, and the Combined Chinese.

His Excellency Major General O.C. Borrett, C.B.E., C.M.G., D.S.O., and Mrs. Borrett, the Directors of the Y.M.C.A., Mr. J. H. Hunt, O.B.E., and Mrs. Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McPherson, Mr. and Mrs. Kwok Chan and Lt. Col. G. T. Raikes, D.S.O., will be among the official guests of the Hong Kong International Amateur Swimming Association.

Some very close finishes are expected in to-night's programme, the first of which will be the Men's 220 Yards.

In this event the European Y.M.C.A. should predominate with H. Lange, the present holder of the bath record, and W. T. Campbell, the Association's half and quarter mile champion. Lange narrowly defeated his rival in last year's Y.M.C.A. Championships.

Campbell is attempting his "treble" after securing the 440 and 880.

Record May Go

Chan Fook-sing the only serious Chinese contender, will probably be unable to keep up with the two European finalists, but he should beat Tang Ho-look, of the Chinese Bathing Club, for third place.

It is more than probable that Lange will shatter his own bath record of 2 minutes 53 seconds, as he has shown appreciable improvement since last year.

The second event to-night, the Ladies' 100 Yards, should enable Mrs. Schreuder (Y.M.C.A.) to secure the "triple" after her wins in the 50 Yards Free Style and the 200 Yards Breast Stroke.

In this event Mrs. S. Reed, who, as Maude George, won the championship two years ago, should give Mrs. Schreuder a good race, and I would not be surprised if she fully entered the Association's new lady champion.

Miss Yeung Sau-chun (S.C.A.A.), sister of the well-known Chinese lady champion, and Miss Chan Yuk-fai (C.B.C.) are not serious challengers.

The probable result of the race will be Mrs. Schreuder, Mrs. Reed, Miss Chan Yuk-fai and Miss Yeung Sau-chun.

The Ladies' Diving Championship is a novelty in itself, as it is being instituted for the first time in the annals of swimming in South China.

Miss Wilson Favoured

Of the four ladies participating Miss J. Wilson (Y.M.C.A.) and Miss Yeung Sau-king of South China are outstanding. I think

WONG SUEN MAN, Wong Yiu Man, the South China brothers, and Leung Shui Man (C.B.C.)

The European entrant will carry the day.

The Men's 100 Yards Back Stroke finals is the second men's event in which the finalists are all Chinese.

The result of this race will be keenly watched as Leung Shui-man, who is staging a brilliant comeback this year, is favoured to secure his "double" after his triumph in the 50 Yards.

The following is the programme:

Men's 220 Yards Free Style:—
Chan Fook-sing (C.S.S.C.) 3 mins. 2.3/5 sec.

SKIPPING THE RINK

Give Your Men Confidence.

By H. P. Webber.

The impression, quite a false one, that the other positions in the rink are inferior to that of the skip has ruined many a bowler's chances of international honours.

Actually no position in a rink is inferior—each is superior according to the special qualities it demands.

I have stressed this point because the sooner the beginner is appreciative of it, the better his chance of ultimate success.

Do not attempt to "skip" until you have been through the mill; that is to say, until you have had experience at playing in the other positions in the rink.

In the No. 1 position you will become proficient at the draw and learn how to throw the jack.

As No. 2, you will keep the score and will acquire experience of placing blocks and back woods and of trailing, apart from doing No. 1's job when he fails.

"DAILY DOUBLE" AT RACE

Innovation For Extra Meeting At Valley.

MAY BE EMPLOYED THROUGHOUT THE SEASON

A new feature will be introduced in the betting at the forthcoming Extra Race Meeting of The Hong Kong Jockey Club on Saturday, September 23, and it is hoped, at subsequent Race Meetings, in the form of a Pari-Mutuel "daily double" or accumulator.

To achieve the double it is necessary for backers to spot the winner of two races previously selected by the Stewards. Those successful in the first race are eligible to back the winner of the second selected race. The Pool, constituted by the number of Daily Double bets on the first selected race after deducting commission, will be divided amongst the nominators of the winning combination.

The procedure is as follows:—Immediately the numbers of the starters in the first selected race are exhibited, tickets on the "daily double" at a cost of $5.00 each, will be obtainable at a special Daily Double Counter. The Purchaser must state the number of the pony he wishes to back in that race, and see that he obtains a ticket bearing that pony number.

The ticket is divided into two sections each bearing the same ticket number, and should the pony backed in the first selected race win, the holder of the ticket must, after the starters are exhibited for the second selected race, fill in, in words, in English, on both halves of the ticket the number of the pony he wishes to back to complete the "double."

The bottom half must be posted in a box provided, before the ringing of the bell closing the Pari-Mutuel betting on the second of the selected races. The box will then be removed and all unposted tickets become null and void.

The top half of the ticket which is clearly marked, is to be retained by the backer, and presented by him for payment if successful.

It is inadvisable for backers to destroy the unposted portions of their tickets until after the declaration of the dividend, because, if the winning combination is unbacked, the pool will be divided amongst the successful backers in the first selected race.

Miss D. D. Steel won the croquet championship for the second time in nine years, at Rochester, when she beat R. G. Klein by the unusual score 25 plus 25 plus 25. In the semifinal Miss Steel beat M. W. Reckitt 25 plus 25 plus 25.

As No. 3, with a wider acquaintance of tactics, you will be the skip's right hand man, guiding him when he is on the mat, and yours will be the responsible task of "getting position" either by skilful placing or by firing to "clear the course" for the drawing woods of your skip.

Specialists. In addition to these duties, you will measure and decide the stores of the end.

Each man is—or should be—a specialist; the leader a specialist at the drawing shot, the second man at positional play and the third man at firing.

Your particular bent will indicate the position for which you are most suited. The skip will combine in his person, out of his ripor experience, all the separate qualities of his associates.

MORE IMPORTANT. PERHAPS, EVEN THAN THE NECESSARY EXPERT CONTROL OF THE WOOD IS THE ABILITY TO INSPIRE CONFIDENCE IN AND TO GET THE BEST OUT OF THE OTHER MEMBERS OF THE RINK.

For this reason, the best players do not always make the best "skips."

A harmoniously working combination is very essential, and when this has been obtained by practice together there will be little need of verbal directions from the skip.

I will say little about strategy, for what has been stated in a previous article on pairs play applies in the main here.

Positional play is what counts. After the first men have sent up their woods, playing to the jack becomes relatively unimportant.

Tactics will be governed by the opposition and by the condition of the green. A few ends should suffice to sum up the qualities of the opposing rink.

(1) Their favourite length of Points to be considered are:—
Jack.

(2) Are they a forceful combination?

(3) Can they be upset by forceful tactics?

On a fast green keep your men as far as possible, to the drawing game. Avoid placing blocks and concentrate on a safe back, position.

On sluggish and heavy greens adopt a more forceful type of play, with resting and yard-on shots.

CIVIL SERVICE TO WIN

First Championship Title Anticipated.

BOWLING GREEN CHANGE

THE Civil Service, are expected to beat the Bowling Green in the play off for the premier league bowls title on the Reccelo Green this afternoon and thus carry off the Championship for the first time in the history of the Club.

The Civil Servants are depending on the same team who beat Craigengower last week.

The Bowling Green, who have beaten the Civil Servants once this season, are making one change in the team which lost to Talkoo. V. Petherick has been moved to No. 2 and R. Duncan to No. 1 in Adam Holland's rink.

The following are the teams: K.B.G.C.—J. Gibson, A. R. Whitley, J. H. Budding and L. Guy (skip); R. Hall, A. McIntyre, D. Gow, and H. Nish (skip); V. Petherick, R. Duncan, W. Macfarlane, and A. M. Holland (skip).

Reserve: W. S. Drake. C.S.C.C.—T. Armstrong, E. W. Simmonds, J. Hollidge, and A. W. Grimmit (skip); H. Lockhart, J. F. McGowan, N. J. Bebbington, and R. P. Phillips (skip); S. Eccleshall, S. E. Alderman, F. J. Jones, and J. W. Deakin (skip).

Reserve: H. E. Strange and R. R. Wood.

The following are the records of the two Clubs in League matches this season:

FOOD AND HOME ECONOMICS

These Dishes Will Keep Palatable No Matter How Late Dinner May Be

Many home-makers are confronted with the problem of keeping meals hot and palatable for the members of the family who like to make every minute of daylight count for gardening or sports. The dinner hour becomes quite indefinite and foods which need not be served immediately after cooking must be chosen.

You will find that casserole-cooked foods and oven dishes of various sorts as well as chilled and molded foods are especially adaptable for meals that must wait. Hot soups can be kept in good condition in the double-boiler, while a cold jellied soup can be kept perfectly and without inconvenience in the ice box. Molded salads and desserts, in fact any dishes prepared in the refrigerator, are easy to serve at a minute's notice and keep almost indefinitely.

Some Refrain Flavour Well.
Certain vegetables can be baked and cooked in various ways without danger of losing their flavour on long standing. Scalloped Irish potatoes, sugared or twice baked sweet potatoes, baked spinach, buttered beets and carrots are some vegetable dishes that do not suffer if kept hot.

In order to preserve all the moisture and heat without overcooking and drying, bake all casserole combinations in a slow oven and then keep them hot in a larger pan of hot water. Part of the dish may be served whenever wanted and the remainder returned to the hot water bath without harm.

NEW PRESERVE HINT

If you can't find a preserve with a flavour sharp enough to suit jaded appetites there is a combination of green tomatoes and limes that offers possibilities. You will need six limes, and six cups of sugar. The tomatoes and two of the limes are ground in a meat chopper, then placed in a kettle with the juice from the other four limes and the sugar. The boiling process requires about 10 minutes. Pour the mixture in glass jars and seal.

2/3 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups whipped cream
Mix ingredients. Chill and serve in glass cups.

Yellow Cake
1/2 cup butter
1 1/2 cups sugar
1 cup milk
8 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon salt

Casserole of fresh salmon and potatoes makes a good two-in-one main dish.

Casserole Of Salmon.
Two pounds fresh salmon, 1 lemon, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 2 cups diced celery, 2 cups potato marbles, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 cup boiling water.

Choose a middle cut of salmon and remove the skin. Squeeze lemon juice over fish. Season with salt and pepper and put in a buttered casserole. Surround with celery and potatoes. Dot vegetables with bits of butter and sprinkle potatoes with parsley. Add water and cover casserole. Bake for one hour in a moderate oven or until potatoes are tender and the fish leaves the bones. Set casserole in a pan of hot water in a slow oven until wanted to serve.

HONEY THAT IS GRANULATED MAY BE RESTORED EASILY

Do not throw away honey which has become granulated or "sugary," thinking that it has become useless. Any grade of honey will granulate if it is kept long enough or is left uncovered, even for a short length of time. The granulation in no way affects the flavour and the honey can so easily be liquefied by placing it in a pan of hot water (160 degrees). The honey should stand in the water until it has entirely liquefied.

The lighter coloured honey is usually delicate in flavour, while the darker grades have a spicy and often heavy flavour. The lighter honey such as orange blossom, clover or sage are generally better for home use, but the darker honey adds great zest to gingerbread, fruit cakes or fruit or nut cookies.

Special Noodle Dish Delicious.

One good dish is a combination of noodles and butter and shredded chipped beef that has been heated in butter. A mushroom sauce is poured over this combination. It is very good.

3 cups pastry flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
Cream butter and sugar. Add rest of ingredients and beat 3 minutes. Pour into 2 layer cake pans which have been lined with waxed paper. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven.

Caramel Frosting
1 cup dark brown sugar
1 cup sugar
1 cup water
3 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
Mix sugars, water and butter. Boil gently, stirring frequently, until soft ball forms when portion is tested in cup of cold water. Set aside 15 minutes. Add vanilla and beat until creamy. Frost cake.

TRY it with fish—you'll be delighted with the flavour.

SPINACH THE DOCTOR RECOMMENDS IT

Available All The Year Round.

ELABORATE EUROPEAN RECIPES

Few vegetables owe more to the mysteries of the cook's craft than spinach. Its rich dark-green hue attracts the eye, its flavour is pleasing and distinctive, and the medical world recommends it.

In England it long flourished in its plain boiled form, but most European countries had their own ways, more or less elaborate, of serving it in conjunction with other foods.

The Italians, for instance, encourage the addition of Bechamel sauce, grated cheese and oil or butter. The French cooks finish spinach with cream, Germans with meat stock, gravy and fried onions, while eggs in some form are used almost universally.

Soups, croquettes, savoury pancakes, timbales, even tartlettes, are included in the range of spinach cookery, and to-day when the vegetable is cheap and supplies so easily available practically all the year round, our cooks are making more and more and better use of this popular product of the kitchen garden.

Take 1 lb. of spinach and two hard-boiled eggs.

Cook the liver in boiling water for 10 minutes and put through a meatgrinder. Cook spinach for 10 minutes in only the amount of water which clings to leaves after washing. Chop finely. Season the liver to taste and place in a slightly buttered casserole with the hard-boiled eggs, chopped. Cover with spinach, slightly salted, and dot with butter or strips of bacon, as preferred. Bake for 10 or 15 minutes. This may be made of calf's liver, but ox or lamb liver is less expensive, and tastes as good in this dish.

Spinach Savouries

This makes an excellent dinner savoury, and is easily prepared. Rub cooked spinach through a sieve and season to taste. Line some small pate cases with puff pastry and at the bottom of each put a layer of cream cheese. Put a large tablespoonful of spinach puree on each.

For decoration place a small ring of puff pastry on each savoury and fill the centre with finely chopped hard-boiled egg. Cook in a moderate oven till the pastry is done and serve at once.

TEA-TOWELS

Sometimes tea-towels are put away damp in a hurry, with the result that mildew is caused. When once the mildew has become firmly established it is difficult to remove, and in some cases impossible. The stain should be treated as soon as it is discovered with buttermilk. Apply liberally, if possible leaving the affected part to soak in the buttermilk overnight. Finally remove and wash. If the stain is not of long standing this treatment will usually prove successful in removing the stain.

Hot Sandwiches Offer Suggestion For Appetizing Luncheon Dishes

A modern development in hot sandwiches uses hot rolls or biscuits as well as toast for the foundation. A sauce also often accompanies these "sandwiches" with the result that a most appetizing main dish for the noon meal is served.

Try fish rolls for breakfast or luncheon. They are inexpensive and quite unusual.

Fish Rolls

One cup flaked salt codfish, 2 cups diced potatoes, 1 egg, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 8 thin slices bacon, 1 cup flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons shortening, milk or water.

Soak fish for one hour before flaking. Cook potatoes and fish until very tender, drain and mash well. Add egg well beaten and pepper. Make into small rolls about three inches long and wrap each roll in a slice of bacon. Be sure the bacon is sliced very thin. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder and rub in shortening. Cut in milk or water to make a soft dough and turn onto a floured molding board. Knead lightly for about ten seconds. Pat and roll into a sheet three-fourths of an inch thick and cut into four rounds. Put two fish rolls on each round of dough and bake in a moderately hot oven until the biscuits are done. When the bacon crisps on one side turn in order to cook the other side. When the biscuits are done serve at once with a hot tomato sauce.

Tomato and Pineapple Sauce

These sandwiches are distinctly novel and very good. You will need two good sized frying pans to make them.

Eight slices of bread cut one-half inch thick, 2 eggs, 1/2 cup milk, 4 thick slices tomato, 4 slices pineapple, 1 teaspoon pearl onions. Beat eggs slightly with milk and season lightly with salt and pepper. Dip bread into this mixture and saute in butter in a hot frying pan. Peel tomatoes and cut in slices 1/2 inch thick. Sprinkle with salt, dip in flour or fine cracker crumbs and saute in hot fat. Dip pineapple slices in flour and saute also. To make the sandwiches put a slice of pineapple on a slice of prepared bread, cover with another slice of prepared bread and on this put a slice of tomato. Top each sandwich with four or five pearl onions and serve at once.

That Fool Of A Mabel

"Yes, I couldn't stand this sort of suspense any longer. I went up this morning for some golf on the chance of meeting him, and I did."

Mabel In A Fright.

And in the morning I had a wild note from Mabel telling me what I already knew from Henry. "You must come and help me," she wrote. "I can't possibly stand it with them alone. Of course, I know Henry did it to please me, but he doesn't realise. Please come in time for tea and help me to get calm."

When I arrived, about four o'clock, I found that Henry had come home at midday with a vile headache. He certainly looked wretched though I couldn't for the life of me be sure if it was head-ache or funk. Poor dear! He was, if anything, in a worse state than Mabel. He wouldn't take aspirin because it made him sick. When he at last announced that he couldn't possibly face a stranger at dinner and Mabel must telephone and put Bertoglio off, I was inexpressibly relieved.

But Mabel had been screwed up to the pitch, and she was not going to let down like that. "Oh! that seems so terribly chilling," she said. "I'll just get the car out and run up to the hotel."

"There's no earthly need to do that," Henry said, quite sharply. "But you needn't be afraid, darling," Mabel protested. "He'll never remember me. And Gillian shall come with me. I always think we owe something to the memory of our big experience."

Mabel was absolutely determined, and I saw that the only thing to do was to get her off and back again again quickly and end Henry's misery. She drove furiously up towards the Links. All her tragic looks were gone. She was flushed, curious, expectant. I could have murdered her.

But when I saw Rex Bertoglio I understood the subtlety of poor Henry's misery. He came down to the lounge to speak to us. And as was a wreck—a faded, dissipated, stupid, handsome creature. No wonder Hollywood had given him a holiday.

At the sight of him Mabel gave a little quickly-smothered gasp, and then, I own, was extraordinarily self-controlled. She expressed her regrets with marvellous sweetness. She was all the more sorry, she said, as she was going away to-morrow for a week, and there would be no other opportunity.

The little liar. I was amazed at her power of invention. She drove away very slowly and began to weep over the wheel till I took it from her in sheer fright. I drove her twice round the town, begging her, bullying her with threats that I can't remember now, to control her self for Henry's sake.

"You realise, don't you," she said, "why poor Henry was funking it?" "Yes," I said grimly. "He couldn't bear me to see how Rex had changed," she sobbed.

She was fairly calm when we went into the house. But as soon as she saw Henry she burst into tears again. Henry took her in his arms and stroked her hair.

"You would insist on going," he murmured, "and I knew one look at him would shatter everything you had cherished all these years. And it was my own silly fault: I'd invited him before I began to see—"

"It's wonderful—the way you love me," Mabel sobbed.

"I'll try to make up to you, darling—"

Filial Confession.
That, I thought, was the end of it. And now that I am back in my flat, writing in this little lounge where three quite delightful men have proposed to me, and I have turned them down—I wish now I had been the end, that I could have gone on thinking of Mabel as a little fool.

But she came round about nine o'clock that evening, while I was packing. I was sick to death of her by then, but she said she had a confession to make.

"Haven't you made them all before, Mabel?" I asked bitterly. "Not this one," she said. "I shall go mad if I don't tell the truth to somebody. I can never tell Henry now—"

"What are you getting at, Mabel?" I asked. "You know Henry and I are very happy, don't you, Gillian?"

"Yes," I said. "Considering this preposterous Bertoglio business, I think you're extraordinarily happy."

"And Henry's much more in love with me than many husbands are."

But when I mentioned the name of Aurelio the Cross-eyed, he became affable and made me sit by the fire outside his tent. Then he cursed my two companions for not having brought back a rabbit or a hare, saying to them? "Where are your catapults—you lazy, rascally louts?"

Then he muttered the word "mol!" and I took the hint that wine was required. A small child took the money from me and rushed off with the old man's wineskin to the nearest tavern.

"Wine Warms Hearts"

The stranger in a gipsy camp would do well to double the wine ration whenever he can, and add in from time to time a dose of "feci" or brandy, for nothing loosens the tongues of gipsies more than "feci" or "repani" as it is called in Spain among the wandering folk.

When the wine had warmed up the hearts of the tribe, I found myself a welcome guest. The women gathered round the fire as well as the men. They were basket-making and as they worked they sang songs in a lilting rhythm.

I then began to hazard a few timid words in Romy, for now was my chance to become a word-taster and add to my store. When I uttered a few phrases, the men with their catapults and big ash-plants tipped with iron crowded round me and patted me on the back. It was a fantastic scene.

I saw in the fitful glare of the fire wrinkled crones, buxom, naked-breasted women, suckling babes, golden-skinned maidens dressed in red skirts with gold earrings and bracelets on their arms, swarthy, bearded men with long black hair, lean and many dogs skulking in the background.

Then one of the women tested me, but their words would not be found in any school-book, for gipsies like to shock the man they consider a "Busno," or nongipsy. Obscenity after obscenity—the gross words bespattered me like a fusillade of dung pellets—but I had been well coached in Romy swear words and obscenities after long nights in Transylvania and in Spain, and I answered back.

Words were bandied to and fro. Shrieks of gargantuan mirth arose. The women surrounded me, cracked their fingers, and capered, the with their wives after eight years—

"Yes—I think that's true." "Hasn't it ever occurred to you that that may be due to this preposterous Bertoglio business, as you call it?"

I looked at her sharply. "It's strange you should be talking about it so coolly now, after weeping all over the place this afternoon."

"I wasn't crying because of Rex Bertoglio," Mabel said miserably, "but because I've deceived Henry so long, and because I realised I shall never dare deceive him—"

"What do you mean?" "You know Gillian, Henry was a little in love with you. You dazzled him, thrilled him. I could never do that. And he was excited because I wanted him—desperately. While he knew other men fell for you. And you were away I managed to work him up to saying he loved me, but I should never have been able to keep him up to it if I hadn't told him—"

"About the Bertoglio affair?" "Yes. As soon as the thought I was going to be difficult he was a different man. It's the old story. And it's kept him eager and interested all these years—I know you all thought I was a little fool. And now, don't you see, after what's happened to-day, he'll always be eager to make up to me for what he imagines to be my shattered dreams—"

"He imagines to be?" I exclaimed. Mabel did not speak for a moment. Then she said: "You wondered why I was so determined to go up to the Moorside and see Bertoglio to-day. It is because I was curious. I'd never seen him at all before—only heard about him from a friend in London." She paused while I stared at her speechless. "There never was any Bertoglio affair," she said. "I made it up."

"I will start at her, and she came over to where I stood and said: 'Will you try to forgive me, Gillian?'"

"I remember I managed to say: 'I forgive you! What have I got to do with it?'"

But now—in this quiet room, with the distant hum of the Paris traffic far below me—naked children squealed, the dogs barked.

Such is the prelude to the gipsy student's conversation in the Romy tongue. We must always remember that the gipsy language is the protection of the race, for it enables them to escape the "Busno" by a sly word in Indian Romy, which he does not understand. As one gipsy said to me in Spain, "What could we Gale's do at a horse fair without the whispered Gale's to help us cheat the 'payllos'?"

After a good bout of talking in the camp I drew out my fiddle and tuned it for music is more powerful than wine among the gipsies. But the minstrel must choose his melodies and dances warily, if he wants to work the music spell on these nomads. When I was with Hungarian or Rumanian gipsies I played Hungarian or Rumanian music, taking great care to im-provise in the different national styles.

Hypnotic Dancing

If I was in Andalusia I preluded pizzicato on the violin as if it was a guitar and played "Flamenco." In Transylvania it was easy to be a minstrel in the country-side, for the fiddle among the gipsies is associated with the "Beng" or devil, and many dances are dedicated to his Satanic majesty. Once the music starts the orgy proceeds apace and the gipsies become like demons when they dance.

The gipsy method of musical performance is closely allied to incantation, and the rhythmic phrase is repeated again and again until it hypnotises the audience. The music, too, with its sudden jumps from one key to another, with its long, meandering phrases, and eternal pauses, is a perpetual description of the ceaseless, roving life of the gipsy over plain and mountain.

The swish of the wind, the rustling of trees, the hot noons, the calm evenings, are in that music. The fiddle is the instrument of the devil, because the gipsy minstrel has the power of driving men wild. He possesses the peculiar faculty which enables him to awaken the primary instincts in every nation in which he lives.

In Hungary he plays the violin better than the Magyars of the countryside; in Rumania he plays the "cobza" better than the Rumanian "povestitori"; in Spain he strums his guitar with more persuasiveness than the Andalusian.

Moonlight Romance

Then as I was playing the moon arose and I felt that I had entered fairyland. I heard the song of the wanderer and in the distance the tinkling of horse-bells. I remembered that the gipsies were called in England long ago, Minions of the Moon, for they were under the tutelage of Diana and her daughter Aradia, the queen of witchcraft.

It is in the moonlight that all gipsy spells are hatched—spells to relieve sickness, spells to excite love. In Transylvania girls walk about naked in the light of the moon that they may win from Diana a sweetheart.

Then later on, as I lay near the smouldering fire with the sound of snoring wafted to my ears from the tents near by, I thought of my first sick locked-up in the chest in the lumber room at home. I thought of the clean white sheets, the hot water bottle, the glass of hot punch, and I sighed.

At the end of the holidays I shall go joyfully home to the luxuries of city life and the daily task from 10 o'clock to 6.30 p.m. for I shall have had my purification in my life among the "Kings of Nature," as Cervantes called the gipsies.

ASSOCIATION GALA

The present Colony record of 71 2/5 secs. stands to the credit of Wong Siong-hing, the Singapore Chinese member of the Hong Kong University Swimming Club, who is not competing.

Leung Shui-man will not have everything his own way as Kwok Chun-hang has also designs on the title. Kwok has so far shown amazing stamina and it will occasion no surprise if he robs Leung of the title.

Lai Im-cheuk (C.S.S.C.), whose time in the heats was only three seconds outside Leung Shui-man's, is also a serious contender.

Ladies' Relay Race

The fifth event to-night, the Ladies' 200 Yards team race, always an outstanding event on a swimming programme, will prove to be no exception to-night, and swimming enthusiasts can look forward to a thrilling duel between South China and the "Y" Ladies.

The South China team will be at full strength. Miss Yeung Sau-king will finish and Miss Yeung Sau-chun will start. Miss Leung Wing-hang another beautiful swimmer and Miss Yuen Pui-cheung, a newcomer, are the other members. This is probably the most formidable Chinese quartette when selecting a representative side.

The "Y" Ladies will have Mrs. A. C. Schreuder who will finish, Miss Ena Allen, swimming third, Miss S. Daiziel, starting, and Mrs. S. Read as second string.

C.B.C. For Third Place

The Chinese Bathing Club, who have Miss Chan Yuk-fai and Miss Leung Yuk-chen among others, are serious contenders for third place, though they will have an exceedingly difficult time against the Chung Sing Benevolent Society, who, despite being a new team, have a formidable quartette which includes Miss Ng Yuet-ken, Miss Pang Sui-har and Miss Dora Lum.

The "Y" Ladies are favoured, but it is possible that South China will repeat their former success and again win by a narrow margin.

The race will rest entirely with the team which takes an early lead, for both have fast third and last numbers who are capable of keeping any lead given them. The "Y" will probably win.

The sixth event, the Men's Diving Championship has drawn a large entry of ten, including three from the Y.M.C.A.

E. F. Selk, who won the open event at the Chinese Bathing Club's gala on Thursday, was the favourite until it was understood that he was providing amusement for the spectators. L. E. Morgan and A. Morrison are now favoured.

Of the Chinese entrants, Lau Hung-shu and Yeung Tak-ming, both of South China, are likely to be the most serious challengers, while So Tin-mo, of the Chung Sing Benevolent Society, will also be in the running for a place.

Mak Wai-ming (C.S.S.C.), who won the title at the Association gala on June 24, has not revealed his best form recently.

All divers have been given an opportunity of training from the Y.M.C.A. boards.

The Men's 200 Yards team race should prove the finest event in the championships.

All four teams, the Y.M.C.A., the C.B.C., S.C.A.A. and Chung Sing, the newcomers who obtained a surprising victory over the Chinese Civil Servants' Swimming Club in the heats, will be about evenly matched, although I do not favour the chances of the last mentioned team.

Close Team Race Struggle

South China, who won the event at the Association gala of June 24, will have to reproduce that form if they are thinking of beating either the Y.M.C.A. or the Chinese Bathing Club.

Leung Shui-man, A. G. Donn, and Leung Wai-sang, who met in the final of the Men's 50 Yards, will again be swimming against each other as last men in their respective teams.

The race, like the Ladies' Team race, will depend entirely on the first three men.

If the Y.M.C.A. men can repeat, or even better their average of 28.1/5 secs. per man, then they are assured of victory.

The Y.M.C.A. will be fortunate to have fresh swimmers, as Lange is the only member of the Y.M.C.A. team who will be swimming in the earlier events. His only event, the Men's 200 Yards, is the first on the programme and will give him ample time within which to recover any lost energy.

The Y.M.C.A. have not yet made their final selection, but in view of Lange's entry in the 220, E. F. Selk, who has recorded 27 seconds, may displace Lange.

Leung Shui-man (C.B.C.), will be competing in the Men's 100 Yards Back Stroke, which is only two events before the relay, but he will have the Diving championship in between, and that should rest him for about half an hour.

Another S. China Win?

The last event, with the exception of the Water Polo game, is the Ladies' 100 Yards Back Stroke. Miss Leung Wing-han should give South China another win.

Miss Chan Yuk-fai of the Chinese Bathing Club is also a serious contender to the title, and I should not be surprised if she won the race.

Miss Dora Lum, who has demonstrated a beautiful breast stroke, has not yet been seen in a back-stroke event, but from what I have seen of her, she too will be in the running for a place.

League Champions v Chinese

The last event, the Exhibition water-polo game between the Association League Champions, the Y.M.C.A. "A" team, and the Combined Chinese will be eagerly anticipated.

The champions have not yet conceded a point in any game this season. Schreuder, skipper of the team, should again be in the limelight as he is an expert shot from any angle. He will be extremely dangerous to the Chinese defence.

It is hoped that a good referee and two good goal judges will be provided as the shallow end of the pool has previously spoiled many a good game.

Owing to lack of time the prizes for the championships are still in the process of engraving and will not be distributed to-night. They will be distributed at the conclusion of the Harbour Race, which takes place this month.

Bowley, the Sussex batsman, has achieved the distinction of beating Joe Vine's record for the highest aggregate of runs for Sussex—22,936. While playing against Hampshire at Portsmouth, Bowley was the recipient of the following telegram:—"Pipped Heartiest" congratulations.

FOUR RECORDS LOWERED IN Y.M.C.A. BATH

In the last two lengths Mrs. Schreuder forged well ahead of her rivals, and finished up a clear nine seconds to the good. Miss A. W. Hunter scratched from the race.

Kwok's Mistake

The biggest attraction last night was undoubtedly the Men's 200 Yards Breast Stroke Championship in view of Kwok Chun-hang's attempt to break the British National record of 2 minutes 39 seconds set up last year by T. Cartonnet.

Kwok made a big mistake last night when he very sportingly swam in the Men's 100 Yards which clearly had a devastating effect on his stamina.

In spite of this handicap, however, Kwok won a hard race from Chan Fook-king, who fully intended the Colony Breast Stroke champion, to set up a new Colony record for the distance. He clocked 2 minutes 43.1/10 seconds—which is only 4.3/10 seconds off the British National record.

I am quite certain that had Kwok not swum the 100 Yards he would have shattered the existing British National Record quite easily.

I hear that he will be given a chance in the near future for another attempt on both the British National and British Amateur records.

The start of the race saw both Kwok and Chan Fook-king take a slight lead over Wong Suen-man. Both were swimming strongly, Kwok widening the gap between himself and Chan during the swim, while the latter caught up on the turnings with a powerful push off.

Nearing the eighth length Kwok let himself go and touched four seconds before Chan. Wong Suen-man was then a length behind.

Campbell's "Double"

The last event on the programme, the Men's 440 Yards Free Style saw another bath record shattered when W. T. Campbell showed a clean pair of heels to H. Lange and A. G. Donn to clock 6 mins. 3.3/5 secs., 7.2/5 secs. better than his previous record, established last year in the Y.M.C.A. championships. He thus secured his "double" he won the 880 on the previous night.

Kwok Chun-hang, feeling the strain of competing in too many events scratched from the final leaving the Y.M.C.A. without opposition.

From the start it looked very much like Lange's race, but the strain of the 100 Yards had telling effect on him, and Campbell gradually forged ahead to lead by a substantial half length. Campbell won by 18.2/5 seconds over Lange.
